

The Effective 'People' Manager

Discovering the essence of true people management...

Course Overview

This pioneering three-day programme tackles the subject of turning 'technical experts' into effective people managers. Pre-programme profiling is supported by a range of innovative applications that can be applied both practically and immediately in the workplace - a catalyst to ensuring that all your managers perform to the best of their abilities, under all circumstances, with everyone, every day.

Why this Course?

Time and time again technical experts are promoted to management roles without the ability to properly manage people, whether they are superiors, peers or subordinates. An effective manager must be able to get the very best out of their people and those around them on a daily basis and this incredible programme gives delegates the ability to do just that - over just three days!

Who is it Aimed at?

It's primarily aimed at junior to middle managers or those who are new to this particular level of management. Our three one-day workshops are fun, interactive and very inspirational, and the added post-programme support and mentoring will ensure the knowledge, skills and behaviours developed over the programme are understood and easily implemented back in the workplace.

What will I Learn?

This programme focusses on getting the very best from ourselves, our teams and those we interact with daily. Tools and systems we'll use include Strengthfinder, Belbin, emotional intelligence, the psychology of motivation and advanced communication. We'll also consider how and when to effectively use various management styles effectively, dynamically and powerfully, and get results!

Why is this Program so Good ?

This programme has been enhanced over many many months and is, we believe, now one of the best programmes of its type available today. Our management development specialists will inspire your managers to act in a more productive, professional, commercial way- creating impact with long lasting results and giving you an immediate return on your investment.

£595 + VAT

Book now or enquire

